There are three common methods of growing strawberries,—in hills, in narrow bed rows, or in wide matting.

We prefer the second method. Arrange the first strong runners by hand, spacing them properly and securing each one in place with a little soil or a small stone. Then, when each row is full, cut off all additional runners that may grow. Keep the ground hoed and cultivated until late fall. The finished row should not be wider than fifteen or eighteen inches.

Modern Farm Methods As Applied in the South.

Notes of Interest to Planter, Fruit Grower and Stockman

"Hedging" Up to Southern Farmer.

Warning after warning against the folly of planting a huge crop of cotton has been flashed to the Southern farmers from the most unimpeachable sources.

President Barrett, of the Farmers' Union, has early and often sounded the slogan of conservatism in cotton and liberality in grain for the approaching season.

Daily newspapers and old, established agricultural journals have taken up the refrain, hammering home the injunction of short cotton and long corn with emphasis and persistence.

Last of all, pre-eminently significant, have come the intimations, recently thrice repeated, that the cotton exchanges, North and South, expect a heavy crop next fall, in anticipation of which future quotations have tumbled dramatically the past week.

One of the latest sledge-hammer "hints" is the third radical break on the New York Cotton Exchange. Explaining the latest record-breaking slump, the market report says:

"Possibly the selling movement was originally due to an effort to obtain profits on long lines, owing to the approach of the new planting season, and expectations of a greatly increased area."

When the men whose fortunes depend upon their accurate forecasting of cotton history begin to discount a large crop, it is high time for the farmers of the Southern States to hedge against low prices and disaster.

There is but one way in which this can be accomplished:

By religiously holding down the acreage and planting heavily in corn and foodstuffs to make up the deficiency.

The impulse to plant heavily in cotton, predicated upon the high prices of the passing season, is a natural one.

It should be disregarded as the individual farmer would flee the plague.

The spinners always "hedge" against unexpected fluctuations in the cotton market.

It is up to the man who supplies the staple to "hedge," also!

The only infallible method of insuring that safeguard is for the farmer to discontinue the practice of planting lightly in cotton and lavishly in food crops.

Forewarned is not forearmed unless action follows caution.—Atlanta Constitution.

Poultry Paragraphs.

There should be no let-up on the fight against lice and mites during warm weather.

Plenty of clean water in clean vessels is necessary for health in the poultry yard now.

See that chickens have good dusting places in summer, even if it is necessary to keep dust under shelter.

It is far better to raise other kinds of poultry than chickens, than it is to be bothered with more than one breed of chickens.

Have several broods of chickens been kept in a coop in the same spot last summer? If so, isn't the health of the last ones poor?

In the poultry yard the person who does things whenever they are found to need attention is the one who succeeds. Small neglects cause big losses.

If looking for a lazy man's job raise geese. They will care for themselves at all ages about as well as so many rats. Still, it pays to give them a little attention.

If desirous of breeding up an early maturing strain of chickens, note and mark those that develop first. By using such for breeders a few years a great change will be made in the breed.

As soon as the breeding season is over, get rid of all the roosters that are not specially valuable. The hens will do better and their eggs will stay fresh longer, to say nothing of saving what the roosters would eat.

To make a vegetable grow quickly, scatter poultry droppings around it and work them into the soil well. A more even distribution can be made by thoroughly mixing the droppings with soil by shoveling them over a number of times while in a box.

Every bit of filth makes a harbor for mites. Thorough cleanliness in hot weather must be the rule.

Hints For Stock Owners.

A man with only one cow or one sheep should care for that one—see that it has plenty of fresh water and good feed—as if he had a hundred. There's where the honest pennies come in.

Pigs will take good care of them.

A PREVENTATIVE FOR CHICKEN MITES.

A sure cure or rather prevention for mites, is to give all the fowl houses, roosting places and nests a thorough cleaning and white washing in early spring, then after each hen hatches flush out the nest with boiling water to which a hand full of salt has been added. I often use the water in which my dishes have been scalded, as it takes only a minute or two to add the salt and bring the water to boiling point again.

For healthy chickens cleanliness is necessary. Sprinkle lime freely about their roosting place and all damp premises.

If the end be well, all is well.

As a rule hogs that will weigh about 250 pounds are most in demand in the market. When heavier there will be some fault found.

There are many breeds of hogs and all have their partisans; but any hog is a good hog that will keep on growing into money every day. However, no breed will do this without intelligent care.

A blanket is to a horse what an overcoat is to a man. He needs it when not in active work.

It is best to turn colts in the open paddock or small field near the stable every fine day for exercise.

One great reason why we have to use medicine for sick horses is that we do not use good sense in feeding and caring for them.

If you do not want your horses to look like buffaloes next spring, you must keep using the curryscomb industriously and thoroughly every day.

Go down to the barn every night after supper and see that everything is all right with the stock.

Better sell half the stock and give all of the feed to what remains than to stint the whole herd.

How many thousands of dollars are farmers going to lose during the winter by letting the stock run down? Give the man who is inclined to smoke in the barn a kindly invitation to do his smoking somewhere else. In half an hour one spark of fire can undo the work of years.

The windward side of a fodder stack is a poor place to fatten sheep. If the most profit is to be realized, lambs should be well finished before being marketed.

Protect sheep from cold rains. The fleece will hold a large amount of water, and it takes a long time to dry.

To sell a half-fat lamb is a losing transaction.

Inexperienced feeders have sold lambs supposed to be fat, which were experienced feeders purchased and finished and thereby reaped the bigger profit.—From Farm Journal.

When Alfalfa Needs Nitrogen.

C. L. M., Bedford City, writes: I planted some alfalfa last fall and replanted this spring, the seed being inoculated. The stand was good, but by mistake some hen manure was thrown over the alfalfa and it now seems stunted and yellow, and the leaves are dropping. Can you suggest a treatment?

Answer: Probably your alfalfa was not well enough established to withstand the effects of cutting, especially as the season at this point has been particularly unfavorable.

The turning yellow may be due to one of two things. If the leaves are reddish on the edge, having become brown, your plants have probably been attacked with alfalfa rust, a difficulty that can often be overcome by frequent clipping of the crop during the first year.

If the leaves are a bright yellow, the chances are that your soil is deficient in nitrogen, and that generous applications of farmyard manure, nitrate of soda or the plowing under of a crop of cowpeas will be necessary to supply the soil with the needed humus and nitrogen in an available form for alfalfa. When the alfalfa becomes well established and the nodules form freely on the roots, it can gather atmospheric nitrogen and can then take care of itself, but in the early stages of its growth the crop is very delicate.

It is not worth while to sow alfalfa except on very rich land. If you find that clipping fails to remedy your trouble, plow up your land, summer fallow thoroughly, enrich with a good top-dressing of well rotted farmyard manure, apply phosphates and potash liberally, and seed again about the first of September.

Your chance of obtaining a successful stand under this treatment will be improved.—Andrew M. Soule.

Corn Fertilizers.

Hen manure and wood ashes mixed as a corn fertilizer, or for anything else alone, are no good, is my experience; one kills the other. Try it this way: Under a good shelter: spread a few inches of rich woods' earth, then a layer of hen manure; cover this with more earth, then your ashes and some salt, say, a peck of salt to every six bushels of the other ingredients.

Keep this up until you exhaust the hen manure and ashes. Just before wanting to use this fertilizer for corn or tobacco, shovel and fork it thoroughly together; pound and mash all lumps; if you wish, pass it through a coarse sieve. It will beat any of your $20 and $25 per ton fertilizers, is my experience, and it costs but little time or money. Use a light handful to the hill, or you may drill it if preferred.—C. P. H., in Southern Planter.

WANT A TEMPLE.

Movement to Erect a Permanent Masonic Memorial.

CELEBRATION AT ALEXANDRIA.

National Association is Formed For Purpose of Erecting Tribute to the First President.

Alexandria, Va., Special.—The movement to erect a permanent Masonic memorial to George Washington took its first definite form Tuesday when Gen. J. M. Dickinson, Secretary of War, and the grand masters of many Masonic grand lodges met here with other distinguished men of the fraternity to form a National Masonic Memorial Association. Perhaps no Masonic celebration ever held anywhere in America has been more elaborate.

In this quaint old town of ivy-covered walls and rambling gardens, upon a street laid out by the young surveyor, near the spot where in 1754 Braddock's young colonel quartered his troops before the fateful march to the Ohio; near the historic old lodge where he was a master and in the midst of a field rich in the events of his life and memory, it will be the purpose of this association to erect a temple to George Washington, a Mason. But apart in the structure will be a hall of fame in which space will be allotted to all the grand jurisdictions in the country to place tablets to the memories of their distinguished sons.

The memorial would stand on Washington street. Close by is the old Christ church where, in his mature years, Washington served as a vestryman. On a field far off he held his last military review. Across a shaded green in the stately old court house he cast his last vote, and there his will is filed.

Alexandria, by undisputed consent, is the natural site for the memorial. Washington moved to Mount Vernon when he was sixteen with his half-brother, Lawrence, and until the chill, raw day of his death it was his home and Alexandria was his home town. He became a member of its council, represented it in the House of Burgesses, endowed its schools, established its fire department and was master of its lodge.

The men who will form the association met in the same Alexandria-Washington lodge room, where Washington occupied the master's chair. While no fixed plan could be announced prior to the assembly of all the grand masters, it is in short the purpose of the lodge to raise $1,000,000 to build and endow the memorial. The institution will be unique among the memorials of the world and will permit every grand jurisdiction to honor every Mason it esteems to be deserving with a leaf in its hall of fame, a photograph and a biography.

CONVINCING PROOF

OF THE VIRTUE OF

Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound

What is the use of procrastinating in the face of such evidence as the following letters represent? If you are a sick woman or know one who is, what sensible reason have you for not giving Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound a trial? For 30 years we have been publishing such testimonial letters as these—thousands of them—they are genuine and honest, too, every one of them.

Mrs. S. J. Barber says:

"I think Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound is the best medicine in the world for women—and I feel it my duty to let others know the good it has done for me. Three years ago I had a tumor which the doctor said would have to be removed by an operation or I could not live more than a year, or two, at most. I wrote Mrs. Pinkham, at Lynn, Mass., for advice, and took 14 bottles of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, and today the tumor is gone and I am a perfectly well woman. I hope my testimonial will be of benefit to others."—Mrs. S. J. BARBER, Scott, N. Y.

Mrs. George May says:

"No one knows what I have suffered from the advance I began to use Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, and the pain soon disappeared. I continued its use and am now in perfect health. Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound has been a God-send to me as I believe I should have been in my grave if it had not been for Mrs. Pinkham's advice and Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound."—Mrs. GEORGE MAY, 86 4th Ave., Paterson, N. J.

Mrs. E. F. Hayes says:

"I was under the doctor's treatment for a fibroid tumor. I suffered with pain, soreness, bloating, and could not walk or stand on my feet any length of time. I wrote to Mrs. Pinkham for advice and directions and took Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. Today I am a well woman, the tumor was expelled and my whole system strengthened. I advise all women who are afflicted with tumors or female troubles to try Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound."—Mrs. E. F. HAYES, 1890 Washington St., Boston, Mass.

Mrs. W. K. Housh says:

"I have been completely cured of a severe female trouble by Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, and want to recommend it to all suffering women."—Mrs. W. K. HOUSH, 7 Eastview Ave., Cincinnati, Ohio.

Because your case is a difficult one, doctors having done you no good, do not continue to suffer without giving Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound a trial. It surely has cured many cases of female ills, such as inflammation, ulceration, displacements, fibroid tumors, irregularities, periodic pains, backache, etc.

Mrs. Pinkham invites all sick women to write her for advice. She has guided thousands to health free of charge. Address Mrs. Pinkham, Lynn, Mass.
